Maggie Connections is a program that helps people with disabilities find jobs. Two Katharine Smith have benefited from this program, finding jobs that allow them to live independently and contribute to their communities.

Katharine Smith #1

Katharine Smith was born with cerebral palsy, which affects her mobility and speech. She uses a wheelchair to get around and speaks with the help of a communication device.

Katharine has always been determined to live an independent life. She graduated from high school and went on to college, where she earned a degree in social work. After college, Katharine worked several jobs, but she was never able to find a job that was a good fit for her skills and interests.

In 2015, Katharine heard about Maggie Connections. She applied to the program and was accepted. Maggie Connections helped Katharine find a job as a social worker at a local hospital. Katharine loves her job and is grateful for the opportunity to help others.

Katharine is an inspiration to others. She shows that people with disabilities can live full and independent lives. She is a valuable member of her community and is making a difference in the lives of others.

Katharine Smith was born with spina bifida, which affects her mobility and bladder function. She uses a wheelchair to get around and wears a catheter to manage her bladder.

Katharine has always been a bright and outgoing person. She loves to learn and is always up for a challenge. She graduated from high school and went on to college, where she earned a degree in education.

After college, Katharine worked as a substitute teacher for several years. She enjoyed working with children, but she knew that she wanted to do more. In 2018, Katharine heard about Maggie Connections.

Katharine applied to the program and was accepted. Maggie Connections helped Katharine find a job as a teacher's aide at a local elementary school. Katharine loves her job and is excited to be able to share her love of learning with children.

Katharine is a role model for others. She shows that people with disabilities can achieve anything they set their minds to. She is a valuable member of her community and is making a difference in the lives of children.
