Caruthers was born in 1978 in Clarksville, Tennessee. He joined the Army in 1998 and was assigned to the 101st Airborne Division. In 2003, he deployed to Iraq with the 101st. He served as a medic in the 2nd Brigade Combat Team.

During his time in Iraq, Caruthers witnessed the horrors of war firsthand. He saw soldiers and civilians killed and wounded. He also saw the resilience of the Iraqi people. Despite the violence and destruction, Caruthers said he was inspired by the people he met in Iraq.

One of the most memorable experiences Caruthers had in Iraq was when he was treating a young Iraqi boy who had been injured in a car bombing. The boy was badly injured and Caruthers did not think he would survive. However, the boy fought for his life and eventually recovered. Caruthers said that the boy's resilience gave him hope and inspired him to continue his work as a medic.

Caruthers was wounded in action in 2004. He was hit by a roadside bomb and suffered severe injuries. He was evacuated to Germany for medical treatment. After he recovered from his injuries, Caruthers returned to the United States.

After his military service, Caruthers became a humanitarian and peace advocate. He founded the Yancy Caruthers Peace Foundation, which works to promote peace and understanding around the world. He also works with other organizations to provide medical care and assistance to people in need.

Caruthers is a role model for many people. He is a reminder of the importance of courage, compassion, and perseverance. He is a hero who has made a difference in the world.
