The Escapist: The Manzini Story is an in-depth look at the life of one of the most notorious criminals in South African history. This article provides a detailed account of Manzini's life, from his early days as a petty criminal to his eventual rise to power as a ruthless and feared gangster.

Manzini was born in 1962 in the township of Soweto, Johannesburg. He grew up in a poor family, and his early life was marked by violence and crime. He was first arrested at the age of 16 for petty theft, and he spent the next few years in and out of prison.

In 1984, Manzini was sentenced to 10 years in prison for armed robbery. He served his sentence at the notorious Robben Island prison, where he became a close associate of other high-profile criminals, including Nelson Mandela and Walter Sisulu.

Manzini was released from prison in 1994, and he quickly returned to a life of crime. He formed a gang called the "Manzini Gang," which soon became one of the most powerful criminal organizations in South Africa.

The Manzini Gang was involved in a wide range of criminal activities, including drug trafficking, extortion, and murder. Manzini himself was a ruthless and feared gangster, and he was known for his violent temper.

In 1998, Manzini was arrested for murder, and he was sentenced to life in prison. He was sent to the maximum-security Pretoria Central Prison, where he remained until his death in 2006.
